

Voters okay $7.25m school bond issue

Coach Frank Kelley can now look forward to winter track practice being held indoors. The special town meeting voted overwhelmingly Monday night to approve bonding of $7.25 million for renovation of the high school, including the construction of a double-sized gymnasium and indoor track.

The high school project was the final piece of business in the meeting, with the vote coming at 11:55 p.m. The count was 280 in favor, 84 opposed.

In other business, the town meeting turned down a proposal to sell land to Dynamics Research Corp. (DRC), approved Marion Street for inclusion on the Official Map, turned down a rezoning proposal for an auto dealership, and approved an increase in the real estate tax exemption for blind persons.

Turnout for the meeting was quite high, with 517 voters in attendance. Many special town meetings have problems meeting the quorum of 150, but such was not the case Monday night.

The first item drawn to come before the meeting were the DRC articles. The proposal was contained in three articles, numbered 2, 3 and 4.

The latter two were passed over, though, after Article 2 failed.

Article 2 proposed to rezone to Industrial Park a parcel of land off Route 125 in North Wilmington, owned by the Wilmington Water Dept. Article 3 sought to petition the legislature for approval to sell the land, and Article 4 was for the town to sell or lease the land to DRC.

DRC, described by Selectman Rocco DePasquale as "the MIT of industry," is presently headquartered on Concord Street, but also occupies space in other buildings in town. Continued growth requires more space, and the company is seeking a location with high visibility. Many town officials, anxious to keep the company in Wilmington, were backing the proposal to rezone the parcel of town land and then sell it to DRC.

The $1.7 million realized from the sale would have been used for a new water treatment plant for North Wilmington.

Discussion on the matter lasted for about 45 minutes. Water Commissioner Arthur Smith said the land was of no use to the Wilmington Water Dept., except as a form of money. The land, he said, drains toward North Reading.

Walter Kaminski of the finance committee asked if the proceeds of the sale could be used for the water department. Town Counsel Alan Altman read the legislative act which established the water department as a self-contained unit, and then said he thought the generality of the act would allow the use of funds for the treatment plant.

Dave Tuxbury of Woburn Street raised a stir, asking, "If I had a buyer willing to pay a quarter million more for the property, would you take it?"

Rocco DePasquale said that the land was zoned rural, had no access, and needed an act of the legislature to transfer. It was proposed as a means of keeping DRC in town.

Tuxbury then said, "How do you know if I have that buyer?"

Selectman Jim Stewart described the sale process as the same as for a resident coming before the town meeting, seeking to buy a house.

Tuxbury said he didn't think it was a good idea for the selectmen to "make deals."

Chairman Dan Ballou said he resented Tuxbury's saying the selectmen made deals. "The selectmen don't make deals — you people make the decision!" he said.

Tom McGinley made a rambling speech, asking why the land wasn't opened up to public bids. Let them (DRC) use the 100 acres zoned industrial last month, he said.

Special town meetings, McGinley said, should be for a civic purpose. They weren't special any more, being called "every month." "Don't call us down here to tell us about yourselves!" he chided the selectmen.

With that, Moderator Michael Caira halted McGinley. "This article speaks to a by-law change," he said.

Dan Ballou, chairman of the board of selectmen, said that people in North Wilmington had asked for better water. He also said that Andover and Ballardvale Streets had once been beautiful sections of town, but were turned industrial before he became a selectman. If you want to tell us not to do this, then vote against it, he said.

When the vote was taken at 8:25 p.m., the article was 40 votes short of the needed two-thirds majority, 252 to 188. Chairman Ballou was the only selectman to vote against the article.

Article 7 was the next to be drawn from the fishbowl. It was for accepting a discontinued section of Marion Street onto the town's official map.

Former selectman Dan Gillis made the motion on the article. He explained that Maryanne Delaney, whose family lives on the street, wants to build a home there. Her parents own several acres on both sides of the road, and wanted to give her the land for her house.

Mrs. Delaney said that when the

'Could walk away but I won't' — Vining

The rubbish contractor serving Wilmington says he has no intention of going out of business, or of losing the contract in Wilmington.

"I could walk away from this tomorrow, but I won't, because I'm trying to provide a service," said Michael Vining, owner of Vining Disposal of Medford.

Vining said he is facing a possible 100 percent increase in dumping costs at the Billerica dump. He blamed the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, as they were forcing the dump owner, Schaeffer, to install a scale.

Vining said he didn't want to see the town pay anything over the contract price. The state forced the dump to install the scale, so the state should pick up the tab, he said.

Until the scale was installed this month, rubbish collectors were paying by the yard. Vining said he absorbed a price increase on July 1 from $4 a yard to $5. With the scale, Schaeffer has yet to set his price. Vining said he asked if it would be $16 a ton, and was told that was too low. Would it be $20? That was high. So Vining figures it will be $18 a ton. He had been paying a rate equivalent to $9 a ton.

Vining said he would be willing to go along with most anything, such as the town dealing directly with the dump, and Vining providing the pickup and trucking. He said that he is trying to hang on until the UOP incinerator opens in 1984.

He presented a picture of a small business fighting for its life, squeezed by two giant corporations, each of which owns its own dumps. If he goes out of business, the two corporations would have the town contract with no contest, and no limit on what they would charge.

In a stormy session after the selectmen's meeting last week, the selectmen, town manager and Domenic Tutela, the chairman of the Wilmington Board of Health argued about how to handle the town's contract with Vining. Tutela said he wanted to be sure the town sues Vining.

Vining had written a letter to the town manager, saying that if the 100 percent increase took effect at the Billerica dump, he would have to increase his charges to the town by up to 52 percent.

Vining won the bid for the rubbish contract last year with a bid of $206,000 for the first year of a three-year contract. As the first year of that contract ended, he notified the town that he could not carry out the contract at the price bid for the second year. The town allowed an increase to $277,000, in effect starting a new three-year contract.

Vining was supposed to post a bond at the beginning of the new contract, but did not. He readily admits that this was wrong on his part. Because of this, the town has withheld payment for his services.

Variance denied on lot purchased from town

Wilmington's Board of Selectmen, from time to time sells a lot of town owned land to a person who, upon next door — and doesn't charge an arm and a leg for purchase price. There is a proviso, however. That lot of land becomes a part of the lot on which the owner lives. It is never to become a "buildable" lot.

That fact of life caused difficulties, on October 25 for Carlo Giangregorio of St. Paul Street. He has a nice home on that street. He filled the street and paved it, about 12 years ago. Beside the home are three houselots, lying between St. Paul Street and Rhodes Street. Rhodes Street is unbuildable — a paper street, so-called.

Giangregorio has, in those houselots, 200 feet by 180 feet. But one part is that which he bought from the town last year. It is 100 feet by 100 feet, and by the deed it is a part of his own houselot.

Giangregorio appeared before the Wilmington Board of Appeals, seeking the right to build on that 36,000 square feet — a home for his son Joseph. Right in the middle, facing St. Paul Street, is that houselot he bought, for a bargain price of $600. That lot is by law, a part of his own houselot.

Chairman Bruce MacDonald told Giangregorio that if he had brought in an appeal for Rhodes Street, under the Official Map act, he could listen to it, but he could not listen to a case for a houselot on St. Paul Street. "We have no jurisdiction," he said.

There were many suggestions, from others present. One was to give that lot back to the town, but that isn't easy.

The Board of Appeals denied the case.

A somewhat similar case was that of Norman Powers, who has lived at 8 Fairview Avenue for the past 25 years. Mr. and Mrs. Powers want a smaller home, and hope to build on land that is in back of their home. Once upon a time there was a "street" there, called, variously, Lexington Street and Lime Street. Powers had a map made in 1947 by the late Alden N. Eames, showing the streets.

The new home would be only a few feet from Adams Street, but Lexington Street is not a street. To make a street would mean cutting into a bank of land, right beside the home

Horribles Parade Monday night

A creepy procession will make its way down Church Street on Monday night. The parade is Wilmington's 15th Annual Horribles Parade.

The parade has become a tradition, for the large part, replacing door-to-door trick-or-treating in Wilmington.

Organized by the Wilmington Recreation Dept. and the Horribles

Parade Committee, the parade will form next to the police station at 6:30 p.m. and will march at 6:45, Monday, Oct. 31. The procession will make its way to the high school tennis courts, where all in costume will be treated to assorted goodies, and receive a commemorative Halloween ribbon.

Camp Fire offers 'Treasure Kit'

Tewksbury residents will have an opportunity for early and convenient holiday shopping as Camp Fire members seek community support during their "Treasure Kit" sale this month.

Orders for holiday gifts and stocking stuffers, priced from $1.50 to $5 will be taken by Camp Fire girls and boys in local neighborhoods beginning October 27. Payment is due when the items are delivered during mid-November.

The "treasures" for sale include practical gifts for all ages. Planning calendars, memo cubes, wrapping paper, novelty treasures, candles, key chains, note cards, oven mitts, sewing kits and a special Camp Fire Cookbook, are among the many items to choose from.

Anyone who is not contacted by a Camp Fire member may call Pat Takach at 851-4770 to buy items and support Camp Fire activity here.

"A successful sale means more funds for activities and camperships for Tewksbury girls and boys," said Mrs. Takach who is the product sale chairperson. Last year Tewksbury used the sale profits for camp tuition, field trips, service projects and general operating costs.

Goals have been set for each Camp Fire member and town organizations within the Grater Boston Camp Fire Council, with prizes and camp coupons offered to the children who meet or surpass the goals.

The Camp Fire Council is partially supported by funds from the United Way of Mass Bay and the Merrimack Valley United Fund, and must match those funds with membership supported efforts. This yearly sale provides about one quarter of the Council's operating expenses in serving over 5000 young people in the area.

Camp Fire, Inc. is a national non-profit volunteer youth agency, offering informal educational-recreational programs to girls and boys ages five through teenage in neighborhood clubs and outdoor camps. More information is available by contacting the Council office at 482-2330.

IGE program now at Tewksbury Junior High

For the past several years, a constant topic of discussion has been the placement of Individually Guided Education (IGE) program students and use of the Center School. This fall a new tenant (the Merrimack Education Center program for handicapped children) occupies the Center School. But what happened to the IGE program?

Well, the IGE program has found a new home, the fourth in its history, at the Junior High School.

The program started out in the St. William's School and moved to the Foster School after the school committee decided to no longer rent the St. William's School. When the Foster, Ella Flemings and Old Shawsheen Schools were closed by the committee in 1981, the IGE program was moved to the Center School. Most recently, the IGE program was moved to the Junior High School when space there became available as a result of moving the ninth grade to the high school.

The 120 fifth and sixth graders in this elective program can now be found hard at work in eight classrooms in a separate second floor area of the Junior High School. The move was made with a minimum of fanfare and disruption.

The program now uses five of its eight rooms for usual instructional purposes. Two of the rooms, formerly connected by a folding door, have now been expanded into a large media center for multiple purpose use. The other room has become a work room for teachers, aides and volunteer parents, who assist in the correction of individualized mathematics materials used by students.

The eight rooms are separate from the classrooms used by regular seventh and eighth grade Junior High School students. That keeps disruption from junior high students passing between periods to a minimum.

With the total population of the Junior High School pegged at less than 990 students for the first time in some 20 years, the amount of disruption and lack of educational productivity has been reduced, says Junior High School Principal Richard Griffin. The lower number of students, according to Griffin, has created a "subdued, business like atmosphere, which is an excellent climate for learning."

The move to the junior high school has also given the IGE students extra benefits. The program can make use of many of the specialized areas of the school - particularly the gym and computer room. Department heads and specialists for grades seven and eight have offered use of their areas and expertise when available.

Although the location for the program has changed, a veteran staff has returned to the IGE program.

That staff includes; Kevin McArdle, Christine Hassan, Thomas Conlon, Dolly Sacramone and Maureen Gropman. Two former teachers in the Tewksbury schools, Mrs. Sutherland and Mrs. Maxwell, serve as instructional aides, assisting teachers with the program. Mr. Thomas Nawn, administrator, will assist Griffin and Assistant Principal Mr. George Abodeley in the supervision of the IGE program.

SAVING AN ACHING TOOTH

If your child should develop a toothache, your dentist will probably do whatever he can to save it if the decay is not too widespread. This will be true whether it's a baby tooth or one of the child's permanent teeth. It's important to the child's future dental health to try to keep all of his baby teeth in place until the permanent teeth erupt to replace them. If a tooth were extracted, the surrounding teeth might crowd together, filling the space, and blocking the eruption of the permanent tooth.

The dentist will first anesthetize the decayed tooth so the child will not be uncomfortable. He will then clean out the decayed area, including the affected portion of the pulp where it enters the tooth's roots. The tooth will be medicated then filled to protect it from further decay. By remaining in place, the tooth will help keep all your child's other teeth in alignment. At the same time it will be reserving a place for the permanent tooth, so it will have a better chance to arrive in its proper position, unblocked by shifting or crowded teeth.

High school to host drug and alcohol education program

by Jim Brown
Tewksbury Editor

A unique two week program geared at sparking public discussion concerning the use and abuse of drugs and alcohol will be held at Tewksbury Memorial High School on two successive Wednesdays - November 2 and November 9 starting at 8 p.m.

"The Chemical People" is a program consisting of two separate television shows on the Public Broadcasting System followed by a public panel discussion, according to Selectman Charlie Coldwell.

Coldwell, director of the pharmacy at Lowell General Hospital, is making an effort to coordinate the Tewksbury program. He says that participants on each night will watch the program at the high school and then enter into a panel discussion on that program.

He hopes that a local drug task force will be set-up as a result of the program. That task force, Coldwell hopes, will be able to continue the attack on drug and alcohol abuse problems on the local level.

"I'm excited about this because for the first time you've got a tool to bring all the people in, watch a national program and have a chance to set-up a task force as an outgrowth of it," Coldwell says.

Coldwell will participate on the panel and answer questions concerning pharmacists. He has also been involved in other drug and alcohol educational programs, but says, "I don't think I've dealt with one as intricate as this one."

The program has the backing of the selectmen and the school department, Coldwell says, and the list of panelists will include the school's health educator, local law enforcement officials and local residents.

"The idea is to get the community involved," says Coldwell. "I think it is time we come out and attack the problem on a communitywide basis," he adds.

An objective of the program, Coldwell says, is to cut off a problem while in the bud and to get people back on the right track before they get too far down the road.

Participation in the program is open to all residents in town, but Coldwell places a strong emphasis on the town's young.

"If nothing comes of it, at least we made the effort. But, I think something will come of it," he said.

Officers complete institute training

The newly formed Northeast Regional Police Institute, located on the grounds of Tewksbury Hospital, has already graduated a number of local officers.

Wilmington officers who have completed the week long training school include Deputy Chief Bernard Nally, Sgt. Donald Mercier, Sgt. Herbert Peterson, Sgt. James Rooney and Juvenile Officer Robert Spencer.

Tewksbury officers include Insp. Clifford Bolton and patrolmen Donald Ryan, George Hazel, Paul Doherty, Peter Amari and Robert Carroll.

Each officer received training in the latest criminal law changes and the impact of Supreme Court decisions on the police officer. They also received the latest changes in the law in regard to civil liability and methods of survival on the street. Other subjects include crisis intervention, court procedure, effects of stress on the job, and motor vehicle law updates and methods of identifying and preserving evidence.

The school was recently formed by representatives of 17 cities and town police departments to provide in service training to all members of those departments. Wilmington and Tewksbury officials were in the initial group of formulating officers. The school is projected to operate over a 30 week period in order to train over 700 police officers from the 17 cities and towns.

Old friends

Friendly chat

Rev. George Taylor (right) and his wife Vi were back in town for the church anniversary. They are shown chatting with Esther Nichols, left.

Merrill's melody

Bill Merrill is a longtime Wilmington resident blessed with a beautiful voice, which he puts to good work in the choir of the Wilmington Congregational Church. On Saturday night, as the church celebrated its 250th anniversary, Rev. William Murdoch (right) called on him to lead the singing.

Sunday school lesson

The Wilmington Minutemen took part in the anniversary celebration. In addition to attending the service and marching from the common, they gave a Sunday school lesson in Colonial lore. Capt. Bob Paulsen, left, is shown speaking about the uniform worn by Adj. Sgt. Marshall Bishop. At right are Lt. Stu Neilson and Pvt. Frank Curley, who also serves as a major in the Massachusetts Company of Militia.

Church anniversary both historical and moving

The 250th anniversary of the Congregational Church in Wilmington was, if nothing else, a chance for old friends to get together. The observance brought to many church people who had not seen one another for several years. Some now live in other towns; some still live in Wilmington. Some still attend church regularly; others go to church only on special occasions.

One face, though, was sadly missing. Win Polsey, a church deacon and choir member, suffered a slipped disc on Friday night, and was taken to New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham. On Tuesday, he underwent surgery.

He was to have been the master of ceremonies at the banquet. Rev. William Murdoch filled in for him.

Two former ministers of the church attended the banquet. Rev. George Taylor, now living in Holden, and Rev. H. Allen Taggell, from Leicester.

"We came because we felt love," said Rev. Taggell. He said that he had three memories of the church. One was Esther Nichols. Another was the CETA center. The third was the front door of the church. "Some of us don't like to go over and close it at 2 a.m.," he said.

In a unique service on Sunday, Rev. Murdoch combined a historical presentation with a spiritually moving experience. Many parts of the service were conducted in the manner used in the eighteenth century. Hymns were sung with a "presenter" singing each line, which was then repeated by the congregation. When the church was founded, hymnals were scarce and organs were banned. William Merrill took the part of the presenter.

Two participants in the service were Henry Hesse, who took the part of the Beadle, the keeper of the Bible. Robert Nelson was the Tythingman, who carried a stick with a long feather, to assure that no one's attention strayed from the service.

Music for the service included a prelude and postlude by the Gordon College String Trio, and "Amazing Grace" on bagpipes, by Leslie Patterson Jones. A native of Toronto, she placed second in the world class Piobaireachd competition in Scotland.

The offertory was "In Adoration", an original composition by church organist Harvey Davies, sung by William Merrill. Two anthems were sung, "Sanctus" and "The Heavens Are Telling", the latter with Harry Atamian singing bass, Ruth Hannon soprano and Sharon Atamian tenor.

Colonial style

Many of the worshippers at the anniversary service wore colonial dress, including the woman shown here in the aisle, prior to the service.

Old-fashioned service

The 250th anniversary service at the Wilmington Congregational Church was held in the manner of an 18th century service. Henry Hesse (right) served as the Beadle, the keeper of the church Bible. Shown following him are assistant minister Robert Machamer, and Rev. William Murdoch.

March from common

Worshippers met on Wilmington Common Sunday morning and proceeded to the Congregational Church. Rev. Murdoch is shown as he passed the library, with his wife Sally and son Ryan.

Prayer to the Holy Spirit

Oh Holy Spirit, Thou who are all knowing, who brightens every path that I may reach my idea, Thou who givest me this divine gift of forgiving and forgetting wrongs done unto me, and who in every instant of my life art with me. I'd like in this short dialogue to affirm my gratitude for all your blessings and re-affirm once again that I never want to part from Thee though the illusion of material things abound.

My desire is to be with Thee and all my loved ones in perpetual grace. Thank You for Your mercy on me and mine. (person should pray three consecutive days without revealing petition. Within three days, grace will be attained regardless of how difficult the petition may be). Publish this prayer once grace attained. Grateful for grace attained.

Halloween parties to be offered in Tewksbury

Four local service organizations and the town festivities committee are busy preparing for an expected high turnout at special Halloween parties across town next Monday. The parties, planned for the Elks Hall on South Street, Disabled American Veterans Hall on Pond Street, Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall on Vernon Street and the Knights of Columbus Hall on Main Street, will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. on Halloween night.

For the second year in a row, selectmen voted to discourage the traditional door to door trick or treating and encourage the town's children to attend the parties. With the experience of last year's well attended parties under their belts, the service groups are planning a night full of events.

Although the final schedule of events at each party will not be final until October 26, it is expected that there will be costume contests with prizes for the best costume at each party, apple bobbing and spook walks. Each child will also receive a packet of wrapped candy and other prizes.

The parties are geared "for youngsters up to the junior high-school age," according to Selectman Charlie Coldwell, the board's representative to the festivities committee. Parents should accompany their children to the parties, he said.

Selectmen discouraged trick or treating last year in response to deaths related to poisoned Tylenol capsules and the nationwide spread of copycat taintings of other products. With very short notice, the four service organizations set-up the parties last year.

According to Coldwell, this year there was ample time to discuss the parties and he said each of the four service groups has donated cash and manpower. Also making donations were the Lions Club, and firemen's and policemen's unions. Cash donations from several local businesses have also been received.

For those children who choose to haunt their neighbors for trick or treats on Halloween, officials stress that parents should accompany their children as they go door to door and should accept only securely wrapped candies and treats.

Participants are requested to attend all three evenings and a registration fee is required. For more information, call 657-3190, ext. 567 (Community Health Education or ext. 568 (Social Services)).

Tewksbury plays well in loss

Spunky Redmen fall short, 19-14

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

No loss in this 1-4-1 Tewksbury High School football season has been tougher to take, for the Redmen actually played well and held the statistical advantage in Saturday's 19-14 loss at Methuen. This is not a bad football team and they hardly played a bad game in losing to the 5-1 defending Merrimack Valley Conference champs. The key mistakes again proved costly in the defeat however.

The Redmen, behind a super game by junior quarterback Mike Irvine, freshman running back Ken Coviello and the entire offensive line, actually dominated the first half of play but still wound up in a 7-7 deadlock at the halftime break.

Irvine, filling in for injured sophomore Rob Aylward (broken wrist) completed eight of 11 passes in that first half for 100 yards as the TMHS attack compiled nearly 200 total yards to the Rangers' 38.

Tewksbury suffered its' first bad break of the ballgame on its' first possession, as after a nice march downfield Irvine had a pass intercepted and returned for a 53 yard touchdown by Methuen's Mike Jozokos. Jozokos toed the PAT, and the home club led 7-0 without the benefit of an offensive play.

The Redmen shrugged off this early setback on the next series and took off again, only to have that man Jozokos come up with another theft to kill that first quarter march.

Irvine settled down nicely on Tewksbury's second quarter scoring drive that was capped by a 40 yard touchdown scamper from the freshman Coviello. Sophomore Jim Evangelista booted the PAT to knot the score at 7-7 in the second stanza.

Senior Bud Farley came up with a big defensive play on the next Methuen series, tackling punter Jozokos at the Methuen 34. Irvine and the Redmen could not move the ball past the Rangers 24 on this possession however.

The swarming Tewksbury defense was a key to much of the team's first half success Saturday, limiting the home club to one first down while the Redmen racked up nine.

Methuen's offensive line sprung the team's talented running backs more often in the second half, as Ranger runner Jay Tardugno took the third quarter kickoff and rambed down the sideline to the TMHS 40 for an excellent return of 45 yards.

The home club then drove to the Redmen 17 before Jozoko's 24 yard fieldgoal was blocked, but the TMHS offense committed a key turnover on the next series with a fumble that the Rangers recovered at the TMHS

Redmen coast past Haverhill, 3-0

The Tewksbury varsity soccer team had a breather this past week, as their three game a week pace slowed down to just one game. In their last road game of the season, the Redmen travelled to Haverhill, where they handed the Hillies their 14th straight defeat, 3-0.

Tewksbury's originally scheduled game with Chelmsford was switched from Saturday, Oct. 22 to Monday, Oct. 24 due to a large number of the Tewksbury varsity taking the PSATs exams.

The Redmen will complete their final four games at home with Chelmsford, followed by Andover at 3:30 p.m. today (Wed., Oct. 26), Lowell, 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 29 and finally, Wilmington, Wednesday, Nov. 2. All varsity games will be played at the Tewksbury Junior High School and junior varsity games at the Tewksbury Memorial High School track and field facility.

Tewksbury 3 Haverhill 0

The Redmen had total control of this game from the start, as they outshot Haverhill 14-0 during the first two periods and ended with a 23-2 shots on net final goal. With all players getting plenty of playing time, play became ragged at times, but Tewksbury still managed to stick three shots by an impressive Haverhill goalkeeper.

Tewksbury used John McLeod in net during the first half and another sophomore, Ronny Mueller in the second half. Mueller's composure and take control effort in net was the highlight of the game. Marc Mason played an excellent game on defense, as the sophomore fullback played aggressively and flawlessly all afternoon.

Peter Valtaggio controlled an excellent cross from winter Tim Kelly to put Tewksbury on the board at 7:18 of period one. Tewksbury wouldn't score again until 11:48 of period three when all-purpose forward Pete Kushnieruk took a through pass from winger Jim Field and hustled his way past the goalkeeper to give the Redmen a 2-0 lead. The goal was Kushnieruk's fifth. At 6:36 of the fourth period Kushnieruk would pick up his second assist of the season when he fed forward Dave Crowley, who beat one defender plus the goalkeeper to score his first goal of the season. The goal closed out the scoring.

The Tewksbury junior varsity evened its record at 6-6-1 with a 2-1 victory over their Hillie counterparts. Dave Cleland and Todd Simas gave the junior Redmen their come-from-behind victory. Also looking good for the JV's was goalkeeper Nick Grund, Ricky Leduc, Jim Latta, Sam Dias and Kyle-Eavreau.

Seven plays later Tardugno took a pitch and scampered four yards to paydirt late in the third quarter for a 13-7 Raner advantage. Senior tackle Tom Ogden blocked the point after try for Tewksbury. Tardugno added a 10 yard run for a touchdown in the fourth quarter for a 19-7 Methuen gap.

The key event on this game clinching drive was typical of Tewksbury's season thus far. The Methuen march appeared to be stopped when Jozokos was dumped for a 20 yard loss at his own 37. The Redmen defense was flagged down for a late hit on the play however, giving Methuen a first down at the TMHS 29 and greatly advancing the drive.

Methuen's attempt at the two point conversion was stopped, setting the stage for another Tewksbury fourth quarter comeback that would fall short.

Coviello, who could be a big man the remainder of this season for the Redmen, took the kickoff and returned it 35 yards to midfield.

Two pass interference calls and a face mask infraction motored Tewksbury down to the Methuen seven yard line, where senior running back Shawn Monahan burst seven yards to the one, setting up an Irvine plunge for the second Tewksbury touchdown. Evangelista's PAT shortened the gap to the 19-14 final, but not before the Redmen would throw a heck of a scare into the home club.

After recovering an onside kick, the Rangers surrendered possession to Tewksbury with 35 seconds left to play.

Coach Bob Aylward and the Redmen opened up the gadgets here, with Irvine completing a flea-flicker pass to sophomore receiver Shawn Blades, who pitched to soph running back Joe Vecchi down the sideline for a 45 yard pickup to the Ranger 20.

With only 11 seconds remaining however, Tewksbury could get off just two hurried passes by the scrappy Irvine that fell incomplete.

Saturday the Redmen host coach Mike Esposito's winless Billerica Indians in a 1:30 p.m. start at Doucette Memorial Field.

Wilmington Pop Warner

Chelmsford edges Chargers, 8-7

The Wilmington Chargers hosted Chelmsford in Pop Warner Merrimack Valley Conference action Sunday at Wilmington High School field.

The A's were edged by the Cougars, 8-7, the B's dropped a 26-6 decision, while the C's lost, 31-0 to the junior Cougars.

In the A game, both teams played strong defense throughout the first quarter, with Wilmington stopping the Cougars at the Charger 23 yard line before Chelmsford halted a Charger drive at the Cougar 40 yard line.

A pass interference call set up

Chelmsford score in the early moments of the second quarter at the Charger 20 yard line. The Cougars scored from two yards out four plays later, followed by the extra point kick to take an 8-0 lead.

Wilmington notched its score later in the second quarter, starting at the Chelmsford 48 yard line. It took the Chargers just seven plays to hit pay dirt, highlighted by the running of backs Steve Jackson, slashing for 23 yards on four carries, and Don Sullivan with a 21 yard scamper to set up the score. The extra point pass from quarterback Danny Woods to Don Corson, cut the margin to 8-7.

The A's dominated the third quarter, as they started at their own 25 yard line following the second half kickoff. The Chargers marched 68 yards in 11 plays, highlighted by a 37 yard sweep by Sullivan to the Cougar 36 yard line. However the Chelmsford defense stiffened, stopping the Charger drive at their own seven yard line.

Tight defense by both clubs stopped drives throughout the final stanza, as the game drew to a close with the Cougars edging the Chargers, 8-7 in a hard fought contest.

The Wilmington defense was led throughout the game by Don Corson, with a pass interception, along with linemen John Rago with a fumble recovery, Dale Gaffey, Dave Feyler and Sean Costello, linebackers Tony DeLucia with a fumble recovery, Mark Tully, Richie Hayden and safeties Mark Russell and Brian Gibson.

The Charger offensive unit turned in a fine performance, reeling off eight first downs and 184 yards on the ground and through the air, sparked by running backs Jackson and Sullivan and an offensive line spearheaded by Darren Danico, John Rago, Dale Gaffey, Dave Gidari and Eric Penttinen in a well played contest.

In the B game, the Chargers struck first with a well executed 60 yard drive highlighted by the running of backs Jamie Britt and Dick Hersom, with Hersom capping off the drive with a four yard dive for the score. Strong offensive line play was turned in by Eric Palmer, Vinnie Zarella and Jason Oliver enroute to the score.

The Cougars bounced back with scores in the first, second and third quarters to down the Chargers, 26-6.

The Charger defense, led by Hersom, Mike Madden and Paul DeFronzo, played well throughout the game.

The Chargers will be on the road Sunday as they travel to Billerica to take on the Indians at Lamson Field. The C game is scheduled for 11 a.m.; the B's at 12:30 p.m.; followed by the A finale at 2:00.

Town meeting

town underwent revaluation, the ultimate insult came with the new tax bill. They were charged for frontage on both sides of a road that doesn't even exist.

The portion of Marion Street where the Delaneys live is a dirt road, and when the town adopted its official map ten years ago, that portion of road was not included. Gillis described what happened as "They took part of a way away."

Ruth Kitchner

When Maryanne went before the board of appeals earlier this year, she was given permission to build her house, with the condition that she pave the road from Chestnut Street to the house. Cost estimates varied. The Jackson brothers, developers and contractors, set a price of $75,000, but that was including water mains and sidewalks. Highway Supt. Bob Palmer was quoted as saying the job couldn't be done for less than $30,000. Gillis said that it would probably take $50,000.

One of the ironies is that none of the residents there want the road paved. They enjoy living on a rustic dirt road.

Bill Hooper, chairman of the planning board, was opposed to the placing of Marion Street on the official map. He said there were some doubts whether there were two houses on the street in 1973, when the map was adopted. He read letters from the police and the board of health, both opposing to the acceptance.

He said he had an obligation to withhold his signature from plans that did not meet the criteria. (for a road - Ed.)

He asked why the article couldn't seek just a section of the street, not the whole street. There were plans for a subdivision, all ready to go, he said.

Mrs. Jean Southmayd, Maryanne Delaney's sister, said that when she and her husband built their home ten years ago, they thought they were setting a precedent.

Hooper then made an amendment to the article, seeking to limit the street to the length needed for Miss Delaney's house.

"What are you doing to the other families on that street," said Mrs. Delaney.

There was very little opposition to the article, the vote being 491 to 7.

Much of the discussion of Article 6 centered around a proposed traffic light at the corner of Main Street and Route 129. Attorney Joseph Courtney presented a signed and sworn letter from Ben Restuccia, pledging to pay for a traffic light at that corner, if he were allowed to build a development behind McNamee Tire, with a driveway leading into the intersection.

Restuccia's plans included a car dealership, an office building and a car museum.

Mrs. Ruth Kitchner changed the subject back to Restuccia's business, using some rather uncomplimentary terms.

"For 50 years, we have fought gasoline alley. Now we've got a car dealer zone," she said.

She said she couldn't understand. The planning board okays this and vetoes Marion Street.

Bob Doyle said he had been confronted with the issue of rezoning for 20 years. "It seems we have a town government in favor of industry," he said.

Doyle also objected to the lighting at Wilmington Ford. "I swear they took that picture with the lights at Wilmington Ford," he said, referring to an aerial photograph Courtney had displayed.

Dan Gillis spoke, saying he had been asked by people living in the area to say that they wanted this development. They did not want to see condominiums.

Very few other people, though, wanted the development. It lost, 55 to 374.

Most of the crowd had come to the meeting to vote on the high school addition, Article 1. By the time Article 6 was finished, there was a stir. Moderator Cairra drew the next number. It was Article 5, a proposal to increase the real estate tax exemption for blind persons. The article was quickly approved.

After Marvin Weiner, chairman of the permanent building committee, made the original motion for bonding $6.5 million for the high school, Dennis Volpe of the fincom proposed an amendment changing it to $315,000. Dan Ballou then proposed an amendment for $7.25 million.

Weiner then proceeded with a presentation, yielding to the architects and other members of his committee.

John Brooks took the floor several times to speak in favor of the proposal. The school has a one-year extension on accreditation, he said, only because the town is trying to do something about the condition of the school.

The building, he said, was inadequate. They were teaching art in the lobby, and photography in a closet. The shops, constructed 32 years ago, were already too small then.

The staff and students of the school were to be highly praised, but the building condemned.

Mrs. Annette Campbell, a teacher who has raised seven children in town, said her children had always remarked how inadequate Wilmington's facilities are. With a 50 percent reimbursement, she said, the town would be foolish not to vote for it.

Dennis Volpe started what was to be a long debate on money. The fincom, he said, unanimously endorses the project. "But I'm concerned about the process we're embarking on," he said.

The $6.5 million figure was not accurate enough, he said, asking for another six months. The $315,000 would pay the architects fees to develop final plans and cost estimates.

He raised a question as to the legality of a contingency phrase in the article, requiring a referendum to override Prop. 2 1/2 before any money is spent.

Town Counsel Alan Altman said that the motion had been drafted by himself and the town manager, after consulting with Henry Hall of Ropes and Gray, the town's bond counsel.

Selectman Jim Stewart said that the fincom approach could leave the town holding a $315,000 set of papers.

Fincom member Walter Kaminski read some detail from the cost estimates, citing costs given for painting a classroom. The cost began at $900, but after fees, additions, profit, and other costs, he said the price was up to $1329. And that would be multiplied throughout the school, he said.

George Allan said the fincom had a band-aid approach. The cost estimates were as detailed as one could expect at this point in the game, he said.

"You talk about risk," Allan said, "Tewksbury spent $750,000 for plans for a water treatment plant, but the town meeting rejected the job and it went down the tube. If you're going to vote, vote one of the two, $6.5 or $7.2 million, and be on with it."

Arthur Smith, who many years ago was chairman of the permanent building committee, said he had gone through the frustration of trying to get a renovation of the high school, or a new high school. He called the present school "a dreadful, dreary dump."

The debate dragged on. Shortly before midnight, Joe Yentile asked about the cost of labor, oil and maintenance. Then he added, "I've heard this school is a rotten school. It is. I've been sitting on springs all night."

The meeting voted on the highest amount first, taking up the amendment for the $7.2 million proposal, which included the double gymnasium and indoor track. The amendment passed, 232 to 130.

Moderator Mike Cairra then recognized Frank Kelley, the high school track coach. Mr. Kelley was the only speaker all night who received applause before he spoke. He said he had frozen for many years, coaching winter track. The cost of the indoor track would be two cents a day for a homeowner.

The vote on the main motion was 280 to 84.

Board wants sign to be real McCoy

Michael McCoy, 31 Kenwood Avenue, is building a pizza parlor on Lowell street, near Maple Meadow Brook. He appeared before the Wilmington Board of Appeals October 25, seeking permission to erect a sign.

The Board of Appeals did not deny the sign, but they did not grant him the right either. They told him to see if he could come in with another proposal.

McCoy proposed a seven by seven foot sign, painted on both sides, made by a soft drink company. The sign, he said, would be divided, so that the name Michael's Place and Pizza would show on both sides. The company would provide the sign free, and their product would also be advertised.

To make a sign would be a phenomenal cost, McCoy said. The sign would cost $3200, plus labor and electricity, or a total cost of about $4500.

"What is the town going to look like if everyone has a sign like that?" asked George Robertie of the Appeals Board.

Chairman Bruce MacDonald told McCoy his board was not going to deny the right, but first it wanted to talk with the Planning Board about the case. That will be some time in November.

The Planning Board, McCoy was told, will look at the problem from his viewpoint, not the viewpoint of the soft drink company.

McCoy hopes to open his pizza shop in December.

Appeals

of Eddie Cavanaugh and Rocco DePasquale. Rocco tried to be helpful. He asked, for instance, there would be a "hammerhead" lot, with a driveway to Fairview Avenue.

Chairman MacDonald pointed out that the advertisement was for Fairview Avenue, and that was what his board had to consider. He doubted if a driveway could be used, even with a right-of-way.

It may have to be re-advised, MacDonald said. The Board of Appeals, he said, is a "semi-judicial board" and has to be very careful to dot the i's and cross the t's.

MacDonald will consult with town counsel.

During the week ending October 25, Wilmington police officers responded to 17 alarms, nine accidents, made eight arrests and two protective custody detentions. Assistance to other departments was given on one occasion, five larcenies and five incidents of vandalism were investigated, medical assistance was given twice and alert neighbors reported two incidents of suspicious activity.

One trespassing and one traffic complaint were logged, one assault and battery was checked out along with five break and entries. One domestic problem was quieted, two liquor and one sex related incidents were investigated.

Arrests

Early Friday morning, John Toler, 22, of 314 Astle St., Tewksbury, was arrested by Officer Pat King and charged with possession of class D substance. Toler was later bailed for a Monday appearance in Woburn Court where he was turned over to Lowell authorities on a default warrant issued by the Assisting her will be paralegal Ed Gillis. There will no longer be outreach schedules at the Council on Aging; rather, elders seeking advice or representation should contact Mr. Gillis at the Woburn office, 935-6459, Tuesday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Home visits will still be arranged when necessary by calling the Center. Call the Center to be picked up.

In the woods David Mather's Oldsmobile landed in a wooded area, with its engine more than 100 feet away, after an accident on Shawsheen Avenue Friday, about 11:45 p.m.

Accident cuts utilities in west part of town

Two young men from Wilmington escaped serious injury and a third is counting his blessings that his injuries were not more serious, after an accident on Shawsheen Avenue in Wilmington late Friday night.

David Mather, 26, of Park Street, Scott Nash, 25, of West Street and Gerry Cullen, 19, of Grace Drive were driving in Mather's Oldsmobile. They play as a band called Organized Confusion. Nash plays the guitar and sings, Mather plays bass, and Cullen the drums. They had been out to play a job, but ended up not playing.

Nash said the car began to "bog out" and Mather gave it more gas. The pedal stuck and he lost control of the car. It took down a utility pole, flipped over and landed in a wooded area, next to a large pine tree, 20 feet off the road, and about 40 feet from the old West School. The engine was torn from the car and landed more than a hundred feet down the sidewalk.

Mather was thrown from the car, but was not injured, except for cuts and bruises. The passenger compartment, although upside down, was intact, with Cullen and Nash inside.

Mather and Cullen were taken to the Regional Health Center for treatment of minor injuries. Nash was taken to Choate Hospital. He had broken his neck in two places and sustained a concussion. Nash lost some sense of feel temporarily, but regained it. There was no paralysis. He has been released, and is recovering at his father's home.

The pole which the car took down carries wires for Shawsheen Avenue and Aldrich Road, and is a key pole for much of that part of town. Power, telephone and cable television service were knocked out, and in some areas were not restored until the next day. Hundreds of man-hours went into the utility repairs.

The car was not removed from the scene until Saturday afternoon.

Scott Nash had "Dude", his three-month old mongrel puppy with him, which was lost after the accident. He was found the next day.

Officer Chris Neville cited Mather for speeding, driving to endanger and failure to keep to the right.

Parents Support Group Thursday

Psychiatric social worker Eve Weltz will lead a discussion during the next Parents Support Group meeting, on Thursday October 27 at 8 p.m. at the Episcopal Chapel in Wilmington. The public is welcome to attend.

The focus of this discussion will be "Signs of Possible Future Difficulties" that parents might observe in normal and unusual actions in their own children, especially adolescents. Mrs. Weltz, the wife of a psychologist, is associated with MacLean Hospital in Belmont and has long been interested in preventative mental health.

The Chapel is located at the left-hand corner of the intersection of Forest Street and Aldrich Road in Wilmington. Aldrich Road is the second left off Route 129 West in Wilmington, after the Fred Cain bridge.

Wilmington police news

Lowell Court

Douglas Albee of North Main Street, Andover was arrested on a default warrant Friday morning. He was taken directly to Woburn District Court for processing.

The Billerica Police Department arrested James Melillo of Ellington Road, Somerville on a Wilmington default warrant Friday afternoon. He was later bailed for a Monday court appearance.

William Kimball of Woodland Avenue, Billerica was arrested by Lowell Police on a Wilmington default warrant early Saturday morning. Kimball was bailed for a Monday court appearance.

A 22-year-old Woburn man was arrested by Officer Bob Vassallo Saturday night on a capias warrant issued by the Lowell six man jury session. Brendan Kelly of Eastern Avenue was held without bail until Monday morning for the next session of court in Lowell.

Accident

Early Saturday morning a section of the Shawsheen Street area of Wilmington was without electricity as a result of an accident near Aldrich Road.

A car driven by David Mather of Park Street, broke off a utility pole at the corner dropping wires from two other poles. The car ended up on its roof, 20 feet off the road and the engine was found 100 feet away from the car.

Three occupants of the vehicle were taken to the Regional Health Center for treatment. Investigating Officer Chris Neville cited Mather for driving so as to endanger, speeding and failing to keep to the right. Other occupants who were injured were Gerald Cullen, 19, of Grace Drive and Scott Nash of West Street, both of Wilmington.

Reminder

Juvenile Officer Robert Spencer reminds parents and children to watch an upcoming film on Channel 2, 8 p.m., Nov. 2 and 9. The film is called Chemical People covering the subject of drugs and their impact on children.

Wilmington senior topics

Before retiring

Once a person decides when he or she will retire, they should apply for social security retirement checks two or three months prior to the time they plan to stop working. This way benefits will begin when work income stops. There are two ways a person can apply. A person can apply in person, or by phone. Many find it more convenient to do it by phone.

The needed documents include a social security card or record of baptism. They also like W-2 forms for the last two years, or if self-employed, copies of self-employed tax returns for the last two years. The purpose of this is to allow the highest possible benefits at the earliest possible date.

Halloween Poems

"Hallowe'en Warning"

Eunice M. Bain
Melrose

Watch out for ghosts and goblins
Watch out for flying bats
Don't enter haunted houses
Beware of coal black cats!

Steer clear of ghoulish spirits
That wander through the night
Look out for Jack O'Lanterns
With eerie flickering light!

Take heed of wicked witches
Astride a magic broom
And phantom specters lurking
In the murky twilight gloom!

So note these words of caution
And mind them well my friend
On this hallowed evening
You may come to some bad end!

HALLOWEEN

On Halloween night the ghosts
Come out
All dressed in flowing sheets
They make such weird noises
As they stroll about the streets.

While yonder in the graveyard
From out of the ground they Appear
They dance about and clang their chains
I know 'cause I saw them last year.

If you chance to look out of the window
You get a terrible fright
'Cause a laughing pumpkin is staring at you
Out there in the black of night.

And if you should glance up at the sky
You can see the witch on her broom
She waves her hand as she sails by
And winks at the Man in the Moon.

But where have they gone at the break of day
Those spooks and creatures queer?
They've gone back into their graves, I suppose.
But they'll come back again next year.

HYMN FOR AUTUMN

How we appreciate the leaves' turning,
How we enjoy a red maple's burning!
Right now the forest's deepest heart glows,
And God's great love of people shows!
He calls us to His mountains and
His hills,
His precious fruit and grain the
Harvest spills,
He paints chrysanthemums in bravest hues,
And brassy sunsets with His fire
imbues...
How we enjoy the glory of it all,
How we enjoy God's shining in the Fall...

"HALLOWE'EN"

Eunice M. Bain
Melrose

So once again it's Hallowe'en
And through the city streets
The ghosts and goblins swiftly dart
In search of tricks and treats.

And once again the door bells
Are chiming constantly
As children make their yearly rounds
In joyful ecstasy.

All dressed in brilliant costumes
While masks disguise each face
They beg for sweets and goodies
And roam from place to place.

Are they heedful of such warnings
As "Beware of Flying Bats"?
Are they fearful lest their pathway
Be crossed by coal black cats?

Are they scared of haunted houses
And witches on their brooms
Or of grinning Jack O'Lanterns
Glaring out from darkened rooms?

As they travel through the shadows
Do they sense a bit of fright
Do their eyes project the wonder
Of this eerie, spooky night?

No, because these phantom creatures
Just appear on Hallowe'en
And 'til the next year rolls around
Are never, ever seen.

So once again it's Hallowe'en
So let the doorbells ring
While ghostlike spirits cast their spell
And children have their fling.

R. Cy Calvo of Burlington is honored

DETROIT, MI — R. Cy Calvo of Burlington has earned a national "Award For Excellence" from Chrysler Corporation. The award was announced by Tom Pappert, Chrysler's Vice President, U. S.
Automotive Sales.

R. Cy Calvo was honored for outstanding performance in the management of Burlington
Dodge, Inc.

Five factors — sales performance, facilities, customer service, administration and community relations — are used to determine which dealers earn an "Award For Excellence."

A dealership's performance in these five areas is judged over a full year of operation and only a select group of Chrysler Corporation dealers survive the tough competition to earn the award, Pappert said.

Montreal- The Modern Metropolis

Bay Project, called La Grande Complex. Since 1971 the region in the northern section of Quebec province has been the site of one of the world's largest hydroelectric projects whose purpose is to provide energy for today and future generations. The James Bay area covers a large part of the province but it is sparsely populated.

The ambitious goal is to harness the power of the La Grande River, the main tributary of James Bay. At its peak 18,000 workers have been employed to transform the vast system of lakes and rivers into an energy source which will produce 10,000 megawatts of electricity from a land of ice and snow. The project is divided into several phases and worksites where powerhouses, generating units and stations, and dams have been built with completion of this first phase to be in 1985.

Due to economic conditions, since 1982 there has been a drop in demand for electricity resulting in Hydro-Quebec having a surplus generating capacity. A program was developed for the sale of surplus energy to other provinces and to the United States.

Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

A visit was made to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in Montreal which is government owned and is designated by legislation as the national broadcasting service. CBC in Montreal operates six stations in both English and French and a large network of French radio and TV stations across the country as well as Radio Canada International. There are, however, privately owned radio, TV and cable stations which also operate throughout the country.

One of the important industries of the province of Quebec is the making of paper. The two natural resources needed are wood and water of which Quebec has an abundance. This has helped the province become one of the world's main papermaking regions filling a demand for newsprint in the U.S. The United States consumes more than 50% of the paper output including 75% of the newsprint because we only produce one-third of our own.

We toured the Kruger Pulp and Paper Mill in Bromptonville wearing our hard hats tracing the process from the start with the raw materials to the finished product packaged for shipping. Kruger, Inc., a manufacturer of high quality paper, operates around the clock seven days a week except for plant shutdown. They are proud of the fact that they never have had a strike in an industry which has had its share. We lunched in the company cafeteria before heading for the province of Ontario.

STRESS

Channel
Cope
Conquer

Learn methods for recognizing and relieving the symptoms of chronic tension and anxiety. In this five part workshop we will explore stress, its causes, effects and how to better handle the pressures of modern living.

Meditation, relaxation and breathing techniques will be taught. Other topics will include nutrition, exercise and guided imagery.

This program will be directed by Priscilla Cox R.N. and Joan King R.N., certificate holders from the New England Holistic Health Education Program. The five session workshop will meet on Tuesday evenings beginning Nov. 1 through Nov. 29 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Union Congregational Church, Putnam Hall, Haverhill St., No. Reading. There is a fee of $7 for each session. For further information call 664-4319 or 475-6043 after 5 p.m.

A decorating starting point?

Clients will often ask a decorator whether there is a right or wrong starting point when decorating a room. Our answer is "No!" Just as each person is different, so will that person's approach be different. You will choose the colors and styles that you think will best work for you, keeping in mind the effect you want to create and what is best for your particular lifestyle. A decorator's trained eye can help coordinate these for you.

When starting with the floor and choosing carpeting in a color you "just love", take the time to look for furniture fabrics and draperies that will go with the carpet before you install it! When working around an Oriental, Indian, Dhurrie, or braided rug, you will need to select upholstery fabrics that will harmonize with the carpet! A long range plan will avoid costly mistakes.

If you decide to put a pattern on your furniture, then everything else can be coordinated around it. Cotton print draperies and matching chairs might also be a starting point. Working around an exciting print wallpaper is also another possibility. You can use the coordinating fabric in small areas as accents — in dining room seats, benches, pillows, and small chairs.

These are just a few ideas that a decorator can build upon to make this fun project that it should be. Just as you would go to any other professional for advice, the same applies when looking for decorating advice. A professional interior designer will help you achieve your goal — a well-designed home, attractive and comfortable for you to live in and enjoy, saving you time and money while doing it.

TIDBITS

Migration of the Thule Eskimos, who probably originated in northeastern Asia and gradually made their way to Alaska, drastically changed the pattern of human life in the North American Arctic. In Eskimo terms, the event was as profound and far-reaching as Europe's conquest and colonization of the New World, National Geographic points out.

Capital of the United States from 1790 to 1800, Philadelphia boasts many of the nation's firsts, including its first bank, hospital, and zoo, National Geographic says.

Apples are grown in a crop in 34 states. Washington ranks number one, producing a third of the nation's harvest, National Geographic World says.

QP PLAYERS

Have you always had an urge to join a community theatre? Give yourself that extra push and come on down and become a member of the Quannapowitt Players. The next General Meeting is Friday, November 4th at 8:15 p.m. at the Quannapowitt Playhouse, 55 Hopkins Street, Reading.

If your interest lies more behind the lights than in front of them, there are many opportunities to work backstage with props, set dressings etc. From time to time, the Playhouse offers Q.P. members instructional workshops in such areas as acting, makeup, set design and lighting. Classes are usually taught by "in-house" members with extensive experience in that particular aspect of theatre.

For more information about becoming a Q.P. member, contact the Quannapowitt Playhouse at 55 Hopkins Street, Reading (944-4949).

Your single donation may help as many as three - maybe even more - people. Boston has the highest transfusion rate in the country, and you must remember that whole blood has a shelf-life of only 21 days.

SPEED READING

A Sanborn Associates speed reading course is being offered this fall at The Cultural Center, located at Lynnfield Common.

This course is scheduled for the convenience of high school juniors and seniors, college students, and adults planning to return to college or other intensive training programs. Adults established in business or the professions have found that this course has enabled them to complete recreational and professional reading tasks in much less time.

AN EVENING WITH CHAMPIONS

America's premiere figure skating exhibition comes to Harvard University's Bright Arena on November 4, 5, and 6 when Eliot House presents the fourteenth annual An Evening with Champions. An internationally known exhibition for the benefit of the Jimmy Fund, this show has raised over 350,000 dollars for children's cancer research and treatment at the Dana-Farber Institute in Boston. Conceived in 1970 by John Misha Petkevich, then a junior at Harvard and soon to become the 1971 U.S. Men's Figure Skating Champion, the event is still organized and operated entirely through the volunteer efforts of Harvard's Eliot House students.

Through the years, An Evening with Champions has acquired a fine reputation among skaters, critics, and audiences. Past shows have featured National, World, and Olympic champions such as Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, Dorothy Hamill, Charlie Ticknor, and Robin Cousins. This year's show promises an impressive roster of National and World medalists in their last performance before the Olympics, featuring U.S. Pair Champions Kitty and Peter Carruthers of Burlington, Mass., U.S. Dance Champions Barbara Underhill and Paul Martini, and former World Ladies' Champion Elaine Zayak.

VETERANS DAY DANCE

The Stoneham Vietnam Veterans Memorial Committee

is planning a dance on Veteran's Day, Friday, November 11th at the Stoneham Town Hall.

The purpose of the dance is to raise funds to erect a deserving monument for the men and women who answered the call to serve during the Vietnam War. Five Stoneham men made the supreme sacrifice by giving their lives in combat. Over two hundred Stoneham men had a tour of duty in Vietnam, most of which were involved in combat action. It is our duty and obligation to erect a monument in recognition of their patriotism and sacrifices. Supplying the music will be Ted Herbert and his 16 piece band, which features the "big band sound". Back in the 1950's the big bands played at the Stoneham Town Hall. Harry James, Guy Lombardo, Ray Anthony to mention a few. Ted Herbert plays the "big band sound" with an up-dated version that caters to all age groups. Ted's popularity is known throughout New England and he is featured monthly at the Danversport Yun and dancing on acht Club.

By ANTHONY MANCONI

I went trick or treating last Halloween, someone wearing a white sheet jumped out of the bushes and screamed, "I'm the devil." Well, I wasn't scared at all. I extended my hand and said, "Shake hands with me, I married your sister."

M.D.C. Officers Bob Giguere and Al Pierce arrested a "Ghost and his Ghoul" friend. When Sgt. Al Avola asked what the charges were they exclaimed, "Haunting without a License." A locksmith in Wakefield was swamped with orders to make, "Skeleton Keys." The Salem Witch City football team played a team from North Reading. The Salem cheerleaders put on a show at half-time riding their brooms. Later when the game resumed the lights went out so it was very difficult to tell "Witch" team had the ball, however North Reading won the game 8 Ghouls to 0.

The crew on the ship "Old Ironsides," is picked for its strong "Constitution." I worked for the State one summer many years ago with a crew of college students in Lynnfield. We cleared brush, bushes and rocks from the side of the road to make a walkable sidewalk and a super critic stopped his car one day and said, "Building sidewalks for the birds to walk on?"

I recently visited the general area and I think I know what that gentleman meant. Hardly anyone walks in Lynnfield. On many palatial estates with luxurious emerald green lawns there were at least one or two Mercedes, or Jaguars in the driveways. I am happy for the people and also for the birds and the sanctuary we built for them.

Remember the "Bridge on the River Kwai?" Well I'd like to forget it and Burma and the Red Ball Express too. I had many close shaves in Burma. I was invited to an Inter-tribal cannibal dinner. I thanked the chief later saying, "Your wife made a beautiful roast." "Yes," he sadly answered, "But I'm sure going to miss her."

Gary Hagen, of Wilmington, is a real executive. That is one who can hand a letter back to his red-headed secretary for a "Third retyping?" My neighbor asked me, "Is the new secretary your wife picked out for you blonde, brunette or a redhead?" "I don't know I answered, "He's Bald."

Cows are always milked from the "Udder" side. The doctor told my Aunt Maria of Tewksbury that the pain in one of her legs was just "Old Age." "Nonsense," she replied, "The other leg is just as old as this one and that's OK."

Dennis Tully, works for a big tree outfit from Burlington - they have branches all over the country. My grandfather told me when I was a young man, "Woodchipper, don't worry, fret or despair, for the Mighty Oak was once a Nut like you." He also told me "You can tell a Dog Wood tree by it's Bark." Angus was dying and his devoted wife was reading to him by candle-light when she said, "Angus dear, I have some chores to do downstairs, if you feel yourself slipping away, please blow out the candle."

A scientific medical breakthrough - the discovery that the "Asian Flu," is a "Chinese Chimney." While at the beach this past summer, I couldn't help noticing that Anatomy is something everybody has - but somehow it looks better on the young ladies.

Ed Baratta, of Winchester looks like ex-Governor John Volpe. Ed puts so much olive oil on his hair his head keeps sliding off the pillow when he's asleep. I always vote for a "Middle of the roader," a bus-driver. One small David and Goliath cocktail and I'm "Stoned."

Whenever I ask Fred Ezekiel "How are ya?" he invariably answers, "I-da-ho, but Al-ask-a." I asked my cousin Jan Tully why her husband Dennis was lying down on the living room sofa? She said, "I think it's spring fever, he caught it in the spring of '79."

So many laws so many creeds - so many roads that twist and turn. When all this cruel world needs is the, Golden Rule's return. Balboa, the great Spanish Explorer, radioed King Ferdinand, "I have found a great big body of water." "Where is it, be more specific." "That's it!!!" replied Balboa, "It's the Specific Ocean!!!"

Folks, October is Fire Prevention Month. As a tribute to the gallant men and women firefighters throughout our Country and especially in this area, I have written this poem.

"The Firefighters"

As I walked by the station's door
I saw a bright and shining floor.
With ladder truck and pumper too
Just standing there without its crew.
A peaceful scene there is no doubt
I wondered when they last were out.
I saw boots and coats and fighting gear
And hoses stacked well in the rear.
Just then a siren's eerie mourn
With added blast of Klaxon's horn
Together brought machine and men
As tower signal sounds, box top.
Then water poured upon the blaze
As men go in through smoke and haze.
They are just missed by falling walls
There's no time to stop, for duty calls.
This is, Oh Lord, my daily prayer
For firefighters everywhere.
"Oh Lord, guide them as fires burn
Please grant for them a safe return."

Teepees and wigwams are not the same thing. A teepee is a conical tent of the North American Indians, while a wigwam is a hut or dome-shaped wooden house.

STANDARD FIRST AID

Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., will offer an eight-hour Multimedia Standard First Aid course in November. The evening class will be held at the Symmes Hospital Division at Arlington on Wednesdays, November 9 and 16, from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The Multimedia Standard First Aid course teaches the fundamental skills and principles of first aid. The course prepares persons to treat most injuries, thus enabling the individual to meet most emergencies when medical assistance is not excessively delayed.

The course consists of the film presentations, review of workbook material pertaining to first aid techniques, demonstrations of proper first aid procedures, and practice by students in these skills.

Topics covered by the Multimedia course include: mouth to mouth breathing, choke saving techniques, control of severe bleeding, first aid for broken bones, the proper treatment of poisonings and burns, the signs and symptoms of heart attack, and the transportation of the injured victim.

The Multimedia system provides a uniformly high quality of instruction by American Red Cross certified instructors. Successful completion of the course entitles the student to an American Red Cross certificate indicating certification in Multimedia Standard

First Aid. Certification is valid for three years.

The fee for the course is $25.00, and the course is limited to 12 participants. Individuals who are required to be certified in first aid, or others who wish to become better equipped in the confrontation of emergency situations, are encouraged to pre-register by calling the Community Relations Department, Symmes Hospital Division, at 646-1500, Ext. 1442.

IPSWICH RIVER DIVERSION

The Ipswich River is perhaps the most highly stressed river in New England, certainly in Massachusetts. Large communities outside the actual drainage basin use Ipswich water for their public water supply while communities within the Basin take water directly or through groundwater diversion via wells. The Ipswich River Watershed Association (IRWA) and Massachusetts Audubon are co-sponsoring a Panel Discussion on "River Diversion and the Ipswich" on Thursday, October 27, at 7:30 P.M. in the Smith Hall Auditorium, Essex Agricultural & Technical Institute, Rte. 62, Danvers. Participants will include Thomas Arnold, former Director of the New England Rivers Center, as Moderator; Michael Hudson, hydrogeologist with IEP; Robie Hubley, Mass. Audubon regional environmentalist; Eileen Simonson, Co-Director of the Water Supply Citizens Advisory Committee to the MDC Water Supply EIR-2020; Jeremy Eden, former legislative aide to Senator Oliver.

The Ipswich itself experiences diversion outside its basin of origin. Long-range plans to ease the increasing demands could include diversions from other rivers to some communities now served by the Ipswich, while other North Shore communities which anticipate problems may eventually want a share of Ipswich water. Beyond public water supply, other uses of the river include wildlife habitat and open space and active and passive recreation, important values for the health of the environment and for the quality of life we enjoy on the North Shore. IRWA was formed largely to respond to the diverse demands upon the River, to encourage responsible regional management and to develop an informed public to be an advocate for this important natural resource. Come to this important discussion of the impacts of river diversion in relation to the problems of the Ipswich.

A "furnace" in a plant? Because skunk cabbages often begin to bloom before the snow melts, the plant produces its own heat when blooming, which melts the snow around it, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. This heat also attracts insects chilled on nippy nights, which may pollinate the plant.

Interest-rate options vary, but link to time, amount

By a business correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor

Boston
"Many of us have enough money to be concerned about, but not enough to attract professional assistance."

That, says Gordon Ramsey, a partner in the Los Angeles office of Coopers & Lybrand, an accounting firm, is one reason so many people are confused about all the savings alternatives. They have more choices than ever before, but selecting the most effective ones is a problem. There are just too many variable factors to consider, in addition to the sheer number of choices.

For instance, he notes, there are about eight different kinds of certificates of deposit (CDs), two new bank accounts (one called money market deposit accounts, the other Super NOWs), hundreds of money market mutual funds, at least three different US Treasury securities, a variety of annuities, checking and savings accounts.

As with any purchase, the more money you have, the greater selection you have. If you have less than $50, you are pretty much limited to savings accounts, US Savings Bonds, interest-bearing checking accounts, and "small saver" certificates.

Up to $1,000, the choices increase to include more CDs, some money market funds, and individual retirement accounts.

It's at the $1,000 threshold that the choices start to broaden significantly. Here you can buy some corporate bonds and bond funds, most money market funds, Treasury bonds, additional CDs, fixed and variable annuities,

As savings grow, so do the choices and tax-exempt (municipal bond) unit trusts.

The new money market deposit and Super-NOW accounts available at banks and savings-and-loans start at $2,500. There is a CD here, too.

At $5,000 there are some tax-exempt municipal bonds and Treasury notes.

A check for $10,000 will get you into Treasury bills; $25,000 will buy a security issued by the Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae); and there are CDs that sell for $100,000.

For many people, the first thing they look at with these instruments is the interest rate. However, Mr. Ramsey points out, there are a number of other factors that should be considered.

First, depending on the type of institution — and sometimes the individual institution — the compounding of interest rates can vary quite widely. Some compound daily; others do it weekly; others just do it once a year. On a large investment, more frequent compounding could mean several hundred dollars of additional interest.

Also, any look at general interest rates (as in the accompanying chart) is just that, a general look. Rates can vary widely around the country. For example, a recent issue of Bank Rate Monitor, a Miami Beach, Fla., newsletter that tracks money market deposit and Super-NOW accounts, found a savings-and-loan in New York paying 9.05 percent on a money market deposit account. Meanwhile, a bank, also in New York, was paying 8.25 percent. A Detroit bank was paying 8.4 percent, while a Los Angeles bank was paying 8.5 percent.

Liquidity, the ease and speed with which you can get at your money, may also be an important consideration in selecting a place for your savings. Passbook savings and interest-bearing checking have excellent liquidity; you can get your money almost on demand. Money market funds are also very liquid; you have your money today by writing a check on the account, or tomorrow with a phone call.

Certificates of deposit, on the other hand, are not very liquid at all. To avoid losing interest and incurring early withdrawal penalties, you must leave them alone for the full term. But then, they usually pay a slightly higher interest rate for the privilege of keeping your cash out of reach.

Some fixed and variable annuities have fair liquidity, with somewhat liberal early withdrawal provisions. However, the federal government has imposed its own 5 percent penalty for taking out your money in the first 10 years.

Market risk, particularly on uninsured vehicles, should be also be considered. Municipal bonds, for instance, are usually considered quite secure. But if interest rates shoot up, your bond may not be worth as much as it was when it was bought. If you need the money before it matures, you may be able to sell the bond on the secondary market, but perhaps at a discount. — Thomas Watterson

FCC cracks down on marine radiotelephone use

According to the New England Safe Boating Council, misuse of the marine radiotelephone, both on land and at sea, is on the rise.

The regional Council, which comprises representatives of 25 federal and state agencies, volunteer organizations, and others working to promote boating safety, cited three major problems observed by the FCC in major harbors across the country:

1. A marked increase in the use of profanity on the air.

2. A decrease in the use of identifying call signs.

3. An increasing number of "Kitchen Coastals" — unauthorized coastal stations using unauthorized frequencies reserved for vessels and other users.

During the next few months the FCC and the U.S. Coast Guard will work together in an effort to find ways to cut down on the misuse of the radio-telephone system. They plan a major push toward eliminating the "Kitchen Coastal" and discouraging unauthorized use of frequencies for next spring.

The FCC cites major unnecessary congestion of Channel 16, the marine radiotelephone emergency and calling channel, as another serious problem. During one survey period in Boston Harbor, 693 transmissions were recorded between 11 A.M. and 1 P.M., the peak usage hours.

users of Channel 16 seemed to be self-policing (boaters admonishing other boaters and urging them to use the proper channels), this was not the case during the week when congestion dropped only slightly.

Currently the fines for general channel misuse and profane communications between boats range from $100 to $500. Conviction statistics are low, however, due to a lack of enforcement manpower.

To help boaters to comply with FCC rules, the Radio Technical Commission for Marine Services published an authoritative Marine Radiotelephone Operator's Handbook in 1977. This easy-to-read reference for the boater provides channel selection procedural words, and "how-to" information but the abuses that prompted the handbook's publication have not abated.

The Council advised

boaters that more FCC enforcement can be expected to protect the integrity of the marine radio telephone system and insure its availability for emergency use.

In Reading Austin Prep to hold Open House November 6

An Open House will be held at Austin Preparatory School, 101 Willow Street, Reading, on Sunday, November 6, from 1:30 to 5 P.M. Students will be present to serve as guides. Representatives of the Registrar's Office and Business Office will be available to answer questions. All interested boys and their parents and friends are invited to attend. The school's Entrance and Scholarship Exam will be given on Saturday, November 19, at 8:30 A.M., and again on Saturday, December 3, at the same time. All applicants must take the Austin exam in person at the school.

Austin Prep is a modern secondary school dedicated to meeting the academic, cultural, and athletic needs of young men in the average to superior range of intellectual ability. Boys who have successfully completed eight years of elementary school are eligible for admission to the ninth grade. Students who wish to enter grade ten may also apply for admission. As a Catholic educational institution Austin teaches and follows Christian principles, but admits as students boys of all faiths.

The school was founded in 1961 by the Order of St. Augustine, which had been requested by Richard Cardinal Cushing to provide high quality Catholic secondary education for the North Shore area. The Augustinian Fathers also run Merrimack College and Villanova University.

Austin Prep offers its students a college preparatory curriculum. Each year over 95 percent of its senior class enters college immediately upon graduation. Last year over 87 percent were accepted at their first or second choice college. The school's phase system, based on the idea that the curriculum should fit the needs and abilities of the individual student, allows Austin to offer courses at different ability levels and to provide a wide selection of electives to complement required courses. Upperclassmen may take college-level Advanced Placement courses in American History, European History, Calculus, Chemistry, English, and several foreign languages. Entering freshmen have a choice of five languages: Russian, Latin, Italian, French, and Spanish. Among the special features of the curriculum are courses in oceanography and computer programming.

A wide variety of extra-curricular activities supplements Austin's academic program by providing social and cultural enrichment. There are organizations for drama, chess, journalism, student government, foreign languages, photography, and physical conditioning. The school's Foreign Language Department has sponsored trips to France, Quebec, Italy, Spain, and Russia.

The school sponsors interscholastic athletic teams in almost every major sport. Austin is represented in league play by teams in football, soccer, basketball, hockey, skiing, baseball, track, cross country, golf, and tennis. There are also intramural programs in softball, basketball, lacrosse, and other sports.

New methods of canning safer

By Janet Christensen
Massachusetts Department of Food & Agriculture

With fresh native vegetables plentiful, and prices at their year round best, why not use a little Yankee ingenuity and put some up for the long, cold winter?

Freezing may be fast and easy, but good old fashioned "preserving" or canning continues to be one of the most popular and economical ways of storing up the summer's bounty. This year there are new recommendations for safer home-canning, however, and the Massachusetts Food and Agriculture Department urges home-canners to become familiar with them.

The revised instructions for many fruits and vegetables require about twice as much time as recommended previously. They offer improved protection against spoilage in canned tomatoes, and also help prevent botulism in strained squash and pumpkin as well as mold spoilage in applesauce and other fruit purees.

Home-canning advice is available from the home economist at your local county Extension Service office. The new instructions are also in the revised USDA Home and Garden Bulletin No. 8, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," available for $2.50 from U.S. Government Printing Office, Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Home-canners in Essex County and vicinity can take advantage of the opportunity offered by the Essex Agriculture and Technical Institute in Danvers to use the processing facilities of the food science and nutrition department free of charge. The canning center is open daily, for information and reservations, phone (617) 774-0050, ext. 75. Canners must supply their own produce and mason jars, and samples are tested by the staff to insure safety.

The canning center is operated on a non-profit basis and promotes safe canning procedures as well as home gardening, farmers markets and Massachusetts agriculture in general.

This year's canning instructions are based on research by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Eastern Regional Research Center in Philadelphia, and agricultural experiment stations in Massachusetts, Minnesota and Pennsylvania.

The new recommendations for tomatoes follow. In addition, canners should note that some tomatoes grown in Massachusetts are considered low acid varieties. To insure safety, add one tablespoon reconstituted lemon juice per pint or two tablespoons per quart.

Fresh lemon juice should not be used because the acidity varies. If you prefer, purchase citric acid (U.S.P. Grade) from your pharmacist and use 1/4 teaspoon citric acid per pint or 1/2 teaspoon per quart. Also, don't use overripe tomatoes in canning since acidity decreases as tomatoes ripen.

The revised times for canning "hot pack" tomatoes are pint jars and No. 2 cans, 35 minutes, and quart jars and No. 2 1/2 cans, 45 minutes in a boiling water bath at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. The time suggested previously was 10 minutes. Note that the "raw pack" method is no longer recommended.

Instructions for tomato juice are pint and quart jars and No. 2 and No. 2 1/2 cans, 35 minutes in a boiling water bath at 212 degrees F., up from 10 minutes for jars and 15 minutes for cans.

For applesauce — pint and quart jars and No. 2 and No. 2 1/2 cans, 20 minutes in a boiling water bath at 212 degrees F.; fruit purees — pint and quart jars and No. 2 and 2 1/2 cans, 20 minutes in a boiling water bath at 212 degrees. This is 10 minutes longer than was suggested previously.

Trivia

A wild rabbit's first line of defense against a predator is to lie flat on the ground and remain absolutely still, says International Wildlife magazine. If that doesn't work, a wild rabbit can jump a distance of at least eight feet, clear obstacles five feet high, and reach speeds of more than 40 miles an hour.

nearby downtown Hanover. The original college building (photo center) is shown with Dartmouth students busy at work reviewing for mid-term tests or just relaxing on the benches and lawn on the picturesque landscape. The major shopping location for

Dartmouth students is the Dartmouth Co-Op in nearby Hanover (photo right) which serves the major needs of students who this year number four thousand undergraduate students from fifty states and many foreign countries. Dartmouth is located in the scenic hills of Hanover, New Hampshire, a town of 6,500 residents. Dartmouth attracts some of the most outstanding academic scholars in the world to its attractive campus. (KAP photos)

US government's $58 a week food plan-how practical?

By Lisa Lane
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Is it possible to feed a family of four for $58 a week?

The new Thrifty Food Plan, released with great fanfare by US Agriculture Secretary John R. Block earlier this year, says yes. USDA officials acknowledge that it requires careful planning and a sharp eye for value food buys.

But critics of the program, who have many reservations about the publicity campaign surrounding the latest plan, also contend that it may require substantial changes in eating habits.

Secretary Block, however, whose family followed the plan for one week, said he felt it was important for him to spend some time living within the $58 allotment.

Why is $58 such an important figure?

This is the amount that a four-member family (consisting of a man, woman, and two children) with zero income would receive from the national food stamp program. The USDA has geared the Thrifty Food Plan to meet the nutritional requirements of such a family with well-balanced meals offering a variety of foods.

The meal plan includes food products from the produce, grains and cereals, meat, and dairy groups. There are no soft drinks, coffee, or tea on the menu, but it does include dessert items.

In drafting the meal plan, the USDA surveyed 4,400 low-income families nationwide to determine their present eating habits. Then it modified the amount and kinds of food to fulfill daily required nutritional criteria within the $58 limit. The meal plan was patterned for the "typical" low-income family, which usually consists of a woman and three children.

Isabel Wolf, administrator of USDA's Human Nutrition Information Service, says the new plan is more in line than previous food plans with the types of food poor people eat. But the emphasis is on different foods: more vegetables, fruit, grain products, milk and milk products, and beans are used. Less emphasis is put on meat, poultry, fish, and sweets. A series of recent seminars promoting the new plan in seven cities around the country was designed to get this information out to low-income families, as well as people working with food stamp recipients.

Critics of the meal plan, however, say that there isn't enough variety in the foods offered. According to Eileen Buckley, coordinating dietitian for Massachusetts General Hospital Health Care Centers, the menu plan would be acceptable if people were to use it for only two weeks. "But," she says, "for most people using the plan, it's a way of life." Ms. Buckley recommends that the USDA develop a two- or three-month plan, rather than just two weeks of menus.

Ms. Buckley also says that "the portions sizes are unrealistically small" and that "there should be more extras [such as ice cream cones] allowed on the plan." She felt, too, that "food-preparation time [should] be shortened."

Irene O'Connell, an aide for the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program, has devised an alternate food plan that falls under the $58 limit. She has written up her plan and is handing it out to her families.

Instead of making up a menu and then writing a shopping list, Ms. O'Connell instructs the families she works with to begin with the shopping list. She says that "it is easier and less time consuming [for

How money was spent by survey households

The Food Dollar

How it might be better spent for budget meals her families] to decide the main course for each meal, write the accompanying items, and then use their shopping list as the menu."

The purpose of the food plan seminars is to reach the low-income families who qualify for food stamps and let heads of families know they can feed their families for $58 a week.

But Ms. Buckley says the poor aren't being reached. Too often they don't have the language resources, time, or money to write to the USDA for the food plan. She says the plan should be made available free of charge to the poor — and also to agencies working with the poor.

Family planning classes in Burlington

Natural Family Planning classes will begin at St. Malachy's Church, 99 Bedford St., Burlington, Mass. on Wednesday, November 2 at 7:30 p.m.

The Natural Methods of Family Planning will provide information about planning or postponing a pregnancy by using the latest techniques identifying the days when conception is possible. The Natural Methods are as effective as any method of birth control when learned and properly applied. These methods may be used by all women in all phases of the child-bearing years.

The sessions will consist of four classes held once a month for four consecutive months. Pre-registration is requested. To register, please call St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Department of Community Health Services, 782-7000, ext. 2440 or 2430.

Geo Facts

Each year, almost 50 percent of all North American ducklings are born in and around potholes, says the National Wildlife Federation; not those potholes you might see on a typical highway, but around the millions of scattered depressions left in the wake of melted glaciers in the Dakotas, Minnesota and central Canada.

Although most people are afraid to eat mushrooms not found on supermarket shelves, white-tailed deer are particularly fond of wild mushrooms, according to the National Wildlife Federation. In fact, during certain times of the year, fungi make up more than 80 percent of a deer's diet in South Carolina.

'ANNIE' needs her supporting cast

The North Reading Theatre Workshop, Inc. announces extended auditions for all of the adult roles in its January production of the hit musical, "Annie." Rehearsals for the adults will be on Friday nights only until December when rehearsals will go to two nights a week. This schedule has been planned so as to alleviate other time commitments people have already made.

Aside from the lead roles of Daddy Warbucks, his secretary Grace Farrell, Miss Hannigan, Rooster and Lily, and F.D.R. there is also a large chorus of maids, butlers, and "Hooverites." An equal number of men and women are needed, so that there is no need to be shy! We can use everyone that is interested; please call 475-7511 or 664-3949 for an audition appointment. If you are strictly interested in the chorus, you may not have to audition vocally — please call the above numbers for information. Because Annie has just been released for community theatre, this is an opportunity to be a part of a "first;" this is the first time Annie will have been presented by a community theatre in this area.

This Week's Poem

HALLOWEEN REMEMBERED

As I sat on my sunporch one Halloween night
And looked out my window; what an eerie sight!
There were goblins, and witches, and devils too
Ready to scare the wits out of you.
The devils in red had horns riding high
And the witches rode brooms as they passed by.
I thought they might forget my house

As I sat there quiet as a mouse,
But then I heard my doorbell ring,
And heard voices start to sing
Trick or treat! Trick or treat!
As they stopped at 31 Marion Street
So I gave them their treat and watched them go
Happy to be part of their Halloween show
For it took me back to yesteryear
When my children were trick and treating here.

Retired Men 'go fishing'

WAKEFIELD — Featured at the Sept. 28 meeting of the Retired Men's Club was an interesting movie, 'The World's Largest Fish Bowl.'

No, it wasn't the White House, as some punsters suggested, it was mighty Lake Michigan. The story began in 1964, when far-sighted Michigan fisheries biologists requested and received 1,000,000 coho salmon eggs from Oregon.

After several months of TLC and carefully controlled water temperatures, 800,000 surviving fry were transferred to a larger hatchery, where they rapidly increased in size on a diet of pellet food. In their second year of life they were ready for planting in the Platte and Manistee rivers.

The decision to stock Lake Michigan resulted from the reduction of sea-lamprey by chemical warfare and overabundance of alewives, a natural food for game-fish. It's been estimated that 90% (by weight) of the lake's fish are alewives or other trash fish, thus world record catches are anticipated. To date, 10-pound trout and 40-pound salmon are not uncommon.

The cost of the experiment has been recouped many times over. Drawing sportsmen and amateurs from several midland states, it has proven a financial bonanza to many Michigan and Wisconsin businesses. The original experiment was such a success that chinook (or king salmon, as they are known on the west coast) were introduced in 1966. Growing to a length of six feet, they are capable of a terrific fight before being taken. Steelheads or brown trout have also been stocked, a succulent treat for any table.

A portion of the film depicted safety measures to be observed by owners and operators of watercraft of every size and description. Most important when one remembers the sudden and severe storms for which the Great Lakes are famous. The end of the movie came all too soon for most viewers. It was supplied courtesy of Nelson Phinney, and William Behnke was projectionist.

Acting-president Les Merrifield announced attendance as 249, which included visitors Everett H. Murray and Ralph E. Noble, Florida; Harry F. Pann, Wakefield; Melbourne H. Skinner and Walter T. Spaulding, Reading.

Henry Porter, Camera Club president, advised of special meetings upcoming and extended an invitation to interested members. Past President Dick Taylor announced new bowling time as 1 p.m. every Monday and Thursday. On October 24, his bowlers will meet the Needham Club on their alleys, with every intention of retaining the inter-club trophy.

Golfing and Stamp Club news was given by Jim Buckley, subbing for Henry Murphy (in Hawaii). With Bob Sproul shepherding his Hawaiian flock, Paul Ehler announced seats were available for the trip to Deerfield, N.H. Fair. Past President Ray Smart read the birthday list for 2nd VP George Richards (in Hawaii). Ten 'birthday boys' were given the usual greeting, led by Al Webber, trying to make like Bob Sproul. With John Griffin, Sick & Visitation, absent by illness, Bob Francis filled in admirably, concluding with a moment of silence for late members, Arthur Dodge and Ralph Margeson. Mr. Francis (Campbell labels man) compiles the birthday lists, which are read at every meeting. He told of a recent visit, by 60 Greenwood Senior Citizens to the Masonic Home in Charlton, where they were served cookies and lemonade by charter-member Harry C. Goodwin.

Jim Buckley spoke of the fine effort of Past President Tom Coughlan and others in shortening the door-prize format. He asked Past President Charles Hayward to conduct the drawing, won by Clarence Peters, Wakefield.

Past President Paul G. Richmond's 'tho't for the day' was thought provoking as usual. Story-teller Roger Callahan had an anecdote about Robert Frost at President Kennedy's Inauguration. Roger recited (with feeling) poet Frost's short poem from that occasion, which closes with the lines, 'but I have promises to keep; and miles to go before I sleep, and miles to go before I sleep!'

Immunization against common diseases is safe and effective

Safe and effective vaccines are available for polio, measles, whooping cough and a number of other potentially dangerous childhood diseases, but as schools reopen each fall there continue to be a number of children who are not immunized.

Experts at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia, theorize that parents have been discouraged from having their children immunized by distrust of medical authority and fears of possible side effects. But, the occurrence of such side effects is extremely rare and the risks associated with the vaccines is small, when compared with the effects of the diseases themselves.

MEASLES — All children who have not had measles or who have never been vaccinated for it should be immunized, preferably before they start school. Measles can lead to serious complications such as brain damage or mental retardation. The U.S. Public Health Service recommends vaccination at 15 months (children who have been vaccinated before 12 months should be revaccinated at this age). About 15 percent of children receiving the vaccine will develop a fever for a few days.

POLIO — All children should be immunized against polio. The Sabin vaccine is preferred by health authorities since it can be taken orally. The usual regimen is three doses given at 6 to 8 week intervals, beginning when the child is 6 to 12 weeks old, and a supplementary dose when the child enters school.

RUBELLA (German Measles) — Rubella is generally a mild disease in children, but if a woman gets it early in pregnancy it can affect the fetus, resulting in serious birth defects. Because children who get rubella can spread it to pregnant women, the vaccine is recommended for all children over the age of 12 months. A combination measles-rubella or measles-mumps-rubella vaccine can be given at 15 months. The vaccine may cause side effects, such as rash, swollen glands, fever and joint pain, but such side effects occur more often in women than in children.

DIPHTHERIA, TETANUS, PERTUSSIS (DTP) — A combination preparation of diphtheria and tetanus toxoid and pertussis (whooping cough) vaccine (DTP) has been routinely used to immunize infants for about 35 years. It has led to a significant decrease in these diseases during that time.

Children under seven should be given DTP injections in four doses — at six weeks, four months and six months, with a reinforcing dose one year after the first injection. A booster shot is given at four to six years of age, prior to school entry. Because pertussis (whooping cough) is less severe and occurs less frequently as people grow older, children over seven need only diphtheria and tetanus boosters every 10 years.

MUMPS — Mumps occurs mostly in young school-age children. Although it seldom results in serious complications, it can cause painfully swollen glands in the face and neck, fever, headache and earache. Vaccination is recommended for all children over 12 months and for adolescents and adults who have not had mumps. The vaccines may be given as a measles-mumps-rubella vaccine at 15 months. One shot provides long-lasting, possibly lifetime immunity. Side effects are rare but can include swollen glands and a mild rash.

For more information about Immunization, write to the Consumer Affairs Office, Food and Drug Administration, 585 Commercial Street, Boston, Ma. 02109.

New Concepts

Calendars have been produced in a multitude of formats, materials and styles down through the ages but nothing has approached "LaserDays: The First Programmable Calendar."

Utilizing state-of-the-art electronic laser printing, these new calendars are produced with personal events actually printed on the applicable dates. Purchasers of LaserDays fill out an "Event Register" which lists and describes all those dates they wish to remember throughout the year. These dates are then programmed into the computerized laser printing system, which produces the calendar at the rate of two pages per second, or 18,000 lines per minute. The expensive, time-consuming steps of traditional printing are bypassed, thus making custom production of individual calendars economically feasible for the first time.

The system also computes birthday ages and anniversary years, and commands the lasers to print this information of the applicable dates. This information is then updated in succeeding years.

Other LaserDays features include a Monthly Preview, Automatic Reminder, Holiday Selection and SportSchedule.

Purchasers of LaserDays can even choose the types of national and religious holidays they wish to have programmed into their calendar. The calendar is also personalized with the owner's name on every page.

LaserDays: The First Programmable Calendar, is offered in a variety of styles and sizes to meet home, office and personal requirements. GiftPak and Executive GiftPak programs are also available for personal and business gift giving occasions. Competitively priced, LaserDays Calendars are manufactured and marketed by Initial Concepts, Inc., P.O. Box 22533-N, Cleveland, Oh 44122.

Park and Recreation Guide

The next time you're looking for a place to make a Saturday outing, class field trip, nature study, or campout, the "Greater Boston Park and Recreation Guide", by Mark Primack (Globe Pequot Press, Chester, Conn. $9.95 paperback) will provide a multitude of inviting options.

This superbly accurate, easy-to-use guide to greater Boston's 135 public parks, beaches, reservations, sanctuaries, gardens, and outdoor spaces is a goldmine of recreation opportunities for tourist and urban dweller alike. Here is complete, year-round information on where to find the best hiking, swimming, camping, ski touring, fishing, birdwatching, canoeing, sailing, ice skating, horseback riding, biking, tennis, nature study, golfing, rock climbing - you name it.

Full descriptions of every park detail activities and offerings, admission charges, mailing addresses, telephone numbers, park acreage, terrain, wildlife, flora, and access by car or public transportation. There are notes on activities for children, facilities for the handicapped, park rules and regulations, as well as safety tips on treacherous terrain, poisonous flora and ocean rip tides.

From the parks to a Spooky Light Walk, from a Day in the Life to a whole year by calendar, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something great to try. But we miss a few happenings, so if you have knowledge of an event of interest to all, write, care of this local newspaper, and tell us all about it. We could use a good scare from time to time.

High tech wardrobe for football players

Two professional football players collide at top speed. They release enough energy to move a 33-ton object one inch. The only thing that stands between them and severe injury or even death is the protective gear they wear.

New, stronger and lighter equipment is available today to protect football players from injury. Fifteen years ago, players wore 25 pounds of equipment, but today they wear equipment that weighs only half as much while offering much superior protection, according to an article in the October issue of Popular Mechanics.

It takes a pro football player about two hours to dress for a game. In that time he will don specialized equipment such as an inflatable "flak" jacket to protect his ribs, shoulder pads which must be carefully pounded into place to insure a good fit, more than ten yards of wrapping tape, and a knee-cartilage shock-absorber, which is a spring and hook device that helps lessen the shock to the knee during sudden stops. Knee injuries are the most common football malady. More than 100 pro football players undergo knee surgery every year.

Even a staple item like the football helmet is undergoing high-tech changes, says the Popular Mechanics article. The latest helmets feature liquid shock absorbers and an inflated inside liner to absorb shocks and keep the helmet firmly in place. After the player puts on his helmet, a bicycle pump tube is inserted in the helmet's ear hole and into an intake valve. The liner is blown up to keep the helmet as tight as possible on the player's head. A loose helmet can cause serious injuries.

A Message to Parents:

Kids must see and be seen on Halloween

Parents outfitting Halloween trick-or-treaters should remember the words "see" and "be seen."

Costumes and masks shouldn't obstruct vision and should be easy for motorists to see, says the Insurance Information Institute in its Halloween Safety Tips for drivers, parents and youngsters.

Nighttime visibility will be especially important this year with Halloween falling on a weekday (Monday, October 31) instead of a weekend.

As if witches and goblins weren't enough, most motorists will be contending with the first weekday on Standard Time along with the switch to driving home from work after dark in many parts of the country.

The Institute reminds drivers that youngsters may be distracted by the Halloween excitement and suggests extra care behind the wheel and slower speeds, especially in residential areas.

Nancy Golonka, the Institute's Director of Consumer Affairs, says, "Parents can guarantee the safety of their children while trick-or-treating by going with them. But if this isn't possible, reflective tapes should be placed on costumes and trick-or-treat bags, and youngsters should be allowed to go out only in groups."

She adds, "Children should be instructed to stay on the sidewalk and to cross streets carefully."

The Institute offers these additional Halloween Safety Tips:

— Make sure costumes aren't loose-fitting garments that could cause the child to trip and fall.

— Use makeup instead of masks, which can obstruct the child's vision.

— Make sure all costumes are made of nonflammable material.

— Keep lighted jack-o'-lanterns or candles away from children or flammable materials.

— Inspect all treats before allowing children to eat them.

Following all these tips will help youngsters, motorists and parents have a safe Halloween, Golonka says.
